This exciting February panel will feature the screening of American Casino, an award winning documentary film that follows the subprime lending crisis and its role in the global financial system downturn of 2008. The film follows everyone from Wall Street executives to "Main Street" families and the resulting environmental affects on communities left in the lurch of the housing bubble. Introducing the movie will be Sarah Ludwig, an adjunct faculty member at NYU's Wagner School of Public Service and founder and executive director of the Neighborhood Economic Development Advocacy Project (NEDAP). Sarah will discuss the local affects of subprime lending and will lead a discussion after the movie. Additionally, WHF is pleased to announce that this event will be a fundraiser for NEDAP's NYC Foreclosure Prevention Gap Loan Fund. For more information about this program, please check out the following website: www.nedap.org/programs/GapLoanProgram.html
